MOSTENBERKY SWORE.—The grand reigners of Montenegro, when at the capital, wear high boots, but when they cross the mountains "opanies" are the only wear. These are pieces of sintamed hide, lead on to the fort like sandals, and which hive been previously steeped in water, so as to take the form of the foot because of the contraction of casi y Shod with these the Montenegrius bound fron rock to rock without alipping, much like the Bas que mountainers, with their rope-soled "alparastan". This gives them an immenus advantage over the Turkish troop, who, wearing ordivary European books, stumble at every step over the pointed rocks, it may be said, "Way don't the Turki adopt the same system when osmpaiguing in this country". But id order to wear milt shees the foot muit be a ready is released. An ordinary fortholis would be all let unprotected by meh, silight covering.
